ISST-SAATHI CENTRE

Activity Reports

September-2014-November2014

Introduction

The Institute of Social Studies Trust (ISST), a non-profit organization, was registered as a trust in 1980. ISST's overall aim is research for change with focus on work and well-being of the vulnerable communities from gender perspective. It attempts to bridge the gaps between research, action and policy.

Headquartered at India habitat centre in New Delhi and a community outreach programme Kalyanpuri Police Station, East Delhi. In recognition of its contribution, ISST has been conferred NGO Consultative Status (Special) by the United Nation. ISST has a FCRA number and account in Delhi.

The ISST community centre was initiated in 2000 in three slum communities in the Trans Yamuna region: West Vinod Nagar resettlement colony, Sonia camp and Nehru camp working initially with child education and development. This work was expanded to include a more holistic engagement with community development, including in particular a focus on youth groups. In June 2006, a new centre, SAATHI Centre, was begun at the Kalyanpuri Police Station in East Delhi, which is now the main field office for the community work. This centre was started to continue the work of the organisation with the community focusing on young children and youth groups, but also to facilitate the use of RTI by the marginalised communities of the region.

Kalyanpuri and its surrounding areas like Trilokpuri, Khichripur, Mandawali (slums and resettlement colonies), in East Delhi, are areas with a very high incidence of crime and drug abuse, besides other problems faced by any urban slum in Delhi. Women here are mostly engaged in domestic work and in home based work (embroidery, jewellery making) and men work as informal sector workers such as rickshaw pullers, factory workers, fruits and vegetable vendors, petty retailers or construction labour. For children and youth in these households, there are limited opportunities for anything beyond very minimal care or education, and risks posed by the surroundings. These include drug dealers and drug abuse, gambling and frequent outbreaks of violence, and fear of sexual violence for girls. While many children are enrolled in school, there is a high dropout rate and some non-enrolment. In many cases, it is found that many girls either never enrol in schools or drop out after 5th standard in order to take over child care responsibilities for younger siblings and household chores as both their parents have to work to make ends meet. Boys drop out and get involved in petty crimes.

ISST Saathi Centre has been working on community development and empowerment through its outreach programme with women, young children, adolescent boys and girls and young adults. Overall, ISST's community outreach programme seeks to engage with individuals and communities through holistic education, awareness-raising, and skill-building activities in order to enable individuals to better understand their environments, make the best possible decisions for the use of their resources and enhance quality of life for themselves, their families and their communities.

The work with the community at the Saathi centre has over the years, largely focused on four strands: Right to Information and community development, the Bachpan programme, a Youth Resource Centre and Domestic Workers programme.

The community centre is seeking funds to continue its important and needs based work on community development and empowerment and to expand some of its essential activities.
